

Front-end web developer with 4+ years of experience building web applications. I am self-taught and worked as the sole designer and developer of multiple user-facing React applications.

The years I spent with Leisure Time Inc. were incredible and illuminating. I explored my interests, discovered my passion for web development, and gained valuable experience designing and developing JavaScript applications. However, after years as a solo programmer, I felt that I would benefit from joining an established dev team. After planning my departure with management and training my replacement, I left Leisure Time and learned technologies that I used to build my portfolio and become a more well-rounded front-end dev. I'm now seeking to join an engineering team where I can make an impact and continue to grow as a developer.
